Message from the CEO

MARK O'SULLIVAN
RASV CEO

The Royal Agricultural Society of Victoria (RASV) is delighted to present the results of the 2017 Australian Distilled Spirits Awards (ADSA).

The 2017 ADSA received a record 245 entries from 69 exhibitors, a 60% increase on the number of entries from last year. The gin category was particularly strong, with 79 entries from across the country.

The ADSA continues to develop based on industry trends and feedback, with 2017 welcoming the inclusion of an aromatic bitters category.

This significant growth in the competition is a testament to the burgeoning Australian spirits industry and the importance and relevance of the ADSA to distillers.

As Australia's only national spirits competition, the ADSA provides distillers with an essential benchmarking opportunity, highlighting the innovation and excellence of Australian-manufactured spirits and liqueurs.

To all exhibitors, we thank you for your consistent dedication to quality and excellence and for producing world-class spirits and liqueurs, as we have seen in this year's awards.

The entries were assessed by a line up of leading specialists in spirits and liqueurs, led by Head Judge Sam Bygrave, editor of Australian Bartender Magazine. We thank the judges for their dedication, professionalism and enthusiasm in assessing the entries to such a high standard.

The awards would not be possible without the support of the valued sponsors and the many volunteers and stewards and we sincerely appreciate their time and generosity in the delivery of the ADSA.

We are thrilled to see the strong growth in the Australian distilling industry and the ADSA, and we look forward to continued development and innovation in 2018.

Message from the Head Judge

With a 60 per cent increase in exhibits entered into the ADSA in 2017, the state of the Australian spirits industry is in good health. Over two full days, the judging panel assessed upwards of 240 exhibits from nearly 70 producers.

The Whisky and Rum panel, chaired by Julian White (Whisky & Alement), with Geoff Fewell (Speakeasy Group) and beverage consultant Russell Johnson, and assisted by associate judges Ev Liong and Luke McCarthy, were impressed by the improved standard of entries and the variety of whisky styles that Australia can be proud to call its own.

The Gin and Aromatic Bitters panel, chaired by Sebastian Costello (Bad Frankie), with Adam Jenkins (Dan Murphy's) and Chris Hysted (Black Pearl and 2009 Bartender of the Year), and assisted by associate judges Caroline Childerly (The Gin Queen) and Michael Chiem (the 2016 Bartender of the Year) had its work cut out, with a full slate of London dry and New World gins, indicative of the increased demand for Australian gins coming from the general public. Again, the standard of gin was high with many collecting medals.

The new category of Aromatic Bitters also showed great promise.

The Vodka, Brandy, Liqueurs, and Alternative Spirits panel, chaired by Sebastian Raeburn (cocktail historian and 2006 Bartender of the Year), with Shaun Byrne (Good Measure Consultancy) and Fred Siggins (Sullivans Cove), and assisted by associate judges Clare Burder (The Humble Tumbler) and Lee Potter Cavanagh (2015 Bartender of the Year), worked across a variety of flavour profiles and spirit styles and were impressed with the inventiveness and high standard of the spirits they assessed.

Having been up close and personal with the exhibits now for the third year, I'm pleased to report that the standard of entries at the ADSA has gone from strength to strength.

Much as the standard of entries has improved, I'm pleased to report that we've broadened the talent pool of judges this year, with an additional associate judge on hand for each panel. Each of the panel chairs, their judges and associates, I'm proud to say, approached their responsibilities with great professionalism, and a strong consideration and appreciation for the work put into creating each of the spirits and liqueurs they tasted on the day.

I know that I can confidently say that on behalf of the judging panel, each of us were honoured to be involved in what is an illuminating and rewarding experience.

Sam Bygrave
